2015 Cicero Strings Orchestra Semester 2

The Cicero Strings Orchestra will expand upon musical concepts, both theoretical and performance-based, to which students have been exposed in middle school music classes. Middle school students will be challenged to think more deeply about the musicality exhibited while playing music with others. They will also learn about well-established composers and will be asked to listen for what is being said by each composer in his music. In addition, students will learn performance and posture techniques that will make them more proficient with their respective instruments. Finally, students will learn how to perform for an audience with increased comfort and a sense of joy.

Required materials: string instrument, Essential Elements Book 2
