A Missional Mandate

At The Genesis Project we believe that Mission is a lifestyle that is built around real, living, breathing relationships. We are fully aware that these types of relationships cannot exist solely through church services and programs. These life changing relationships will only be accomplished through a sacrificial lifestyle within each of us. The mission will demand significant investment of our time, talents and resources. Who we are is fully dependent upon the willingness of each person within our community to pick up this mantle of love and service in their common lives as Ambassadors of Christ to Ogden. It is a 24/7 calling. We know that in order to BE the Body of Jesus in Ogden requires ALL of us functioning uniquely together under the leadership and direction of the Holy Spirit.

Missional living is adopting the posture, thinking, behaviors and practices of a missionary within our setting and culture.

This is the conduit of the Gospel Message to our community.

A Missional Model

As a church we understand that living out a missional life is very daunting and often times a mystery for many of us. Although systems and models could never be a substitute for a life on mission we feel very strongly that both can be used as tools to inspire, teach and develop the confidence within our church family to live out Christ's call within the day to day lives of every individual. Our goal is to adopt a model on Wednesday Nights which will allow people the opportunity to engage in a multi-faceted missional setting that provides a safe, orderly environment for learning and engagement. Every week provides the organizational structure, resources and vision for each person within our community to learn what it means to fulfill the BELLS challenge. Fulfilling the basic principles of what it means to live a Gospel centered life within the spheres of influence in our lives.

We learn by doing. This is a principle that exists in every arena of our lives; from the dinner table to the workplace. But for some reason this often fails to translate into the missional arena of our Church experience. It is so easy to listen to sermons and teachings which exposit the missional mandate of the Gospel and leave us feeling moved and passionate only to "lose steam" when faced with the stark reality of not knowing the "how" behind the "call". We believe that the acrostic BELLS lays out a very easy and practical format which serves as a natural "onramp" leading us towards missional living as a part of The Body of Christ.
