Become a Volunteer for Loving the Land

The Southern Oregon Land Conservancy's "Loving the Land" outdoor program is designed to introduce 4th and 5th grade school classes to the Oredson-Todd Woods. This peaceful and wild parkland is just minutes away from Ashland and has been set aside for public enjoyment in perpetuity.

We hope to inspire a love for the woodland through three investigative and exploratory field studies, plus a nature hike to the waterfall and a picnic lunch. The field studies are designed to help focus on the uniqueness of Clay Creek and the Woods. Enthusiastic volunteers are needed to facilitate a lively investigation of the "Trees in the Woods", "Riparian Habitat", "River Rock Geology", a nature hike and a picnic lunch in the woods.

We hope students will become adult community partners who understand the Southern Oregon Land Conservancy's dedication to permanent protection of local lands.

April 27- May 1, 2015 (Mon-Fri)

Volunteers arrive at the Woods at 9:45 and are done by 2:00 with a lunch break. We provide you with a delicious, hearty bag lunch.

Trail Hike Guides take the classes up to the waterfall, their lunch area, and to their first stations. These volunteers come at 11:00 and leave at 1:00.
