

Take a Journey Through Time While Making Connections to Toronto's Waterfront

Prepare to be wowed by the incredible transformation Toronto's waterfront has undergone over the last century by visiting Making Connections to Toronto's Waterfront – a Historical Retrospective, a photo exhibit curated by PortsToronto and on display May 24 to June 7 at WaterPark Place (located at 10 Bay Street).

Toronto's south core and waterfront are home to businesses, residences and some of the most significant development in North America today. However, just 100 years ago, much of the area was swamp before PortsToronto added more than 2,000 acres of land to construct Toronto's waterfront. Created using photos selected from the rarely viewed PortsToronto Archive, images of the Harbour, Port of Toronto, Billy Bishop Toronto City Airport and other points along the waterfront, take exhibit visitors on a journey through time from the early 1900's to today.
