

Workplace bullying is real. It is recognizable and preventable.

Bullying in the workplace is any threatening, humiliating, intimidating, verbal or physical abuse, that violates the safety of an employee. It often prevents or sabotages efforts for work to be done, costs companies in lost productivity, and opens up companies to potential claims.

Join us for a learning and development seminar on recognizing and preventing workplace bullying.

Work Shouldn't Hurt

Wednesday, August 12, 2015

Marian University Theatre
3200 Cold Spring Road, Indianapolis, IN 46222

Free Admission • Register Online

www.marian.edu/bullying
Call 317.955.6271 for more information.

6 p.m.-8 p.m.

Registration and refreshments begin at 5:30 p.m.

- Keynote Speaker Chris Lytle, retired Ultimate Fighting Champion, who empowers and educates others to fight against bullying.
- Andrea Morehead, Emmy Award-Winning WTHR Eyewitness News Anchor, will emcee the seminar.
- Panel discussion with Q & A
- Dress code is business casual.

MARIAN UNIVERSITY
Indianapolis®

Marian's Adult Programs

Keynote Speaker: Chris Lytle

Advocate and Speaker on bullying, domestic violence, and sexual assault prevention.

“65 million workers are affected by workplace bullying.”

“72 percent are aware that workplace bullying happens.”

“56 percent of bullies are bosses.”

~The Workplace Bullying Institute,
2014 survey

This event is the result of a collaborative effort between Marian's Adult Programs (MAP) and The Chris Lytle Foundation and is planned and executed by the students and faculty of MAP's Meeting and Event Planning concentration. More information on MAP can be found online at www.marian.edu/MAP.