

Practices in Arts Integration

A SATURDAY TEACHER WORKSHOP

SAT
UR
DAY

October 10, 2015

8:00am-4:30pm

Polaris at Ebert Elementary School
410 Park Ave. West, Denver 80205

Registration Fee:

$70 per person

We have a grant to provide travel reimbursements if you are coming from outside the Metro Denver area! Please contact us for more information.

Credit:

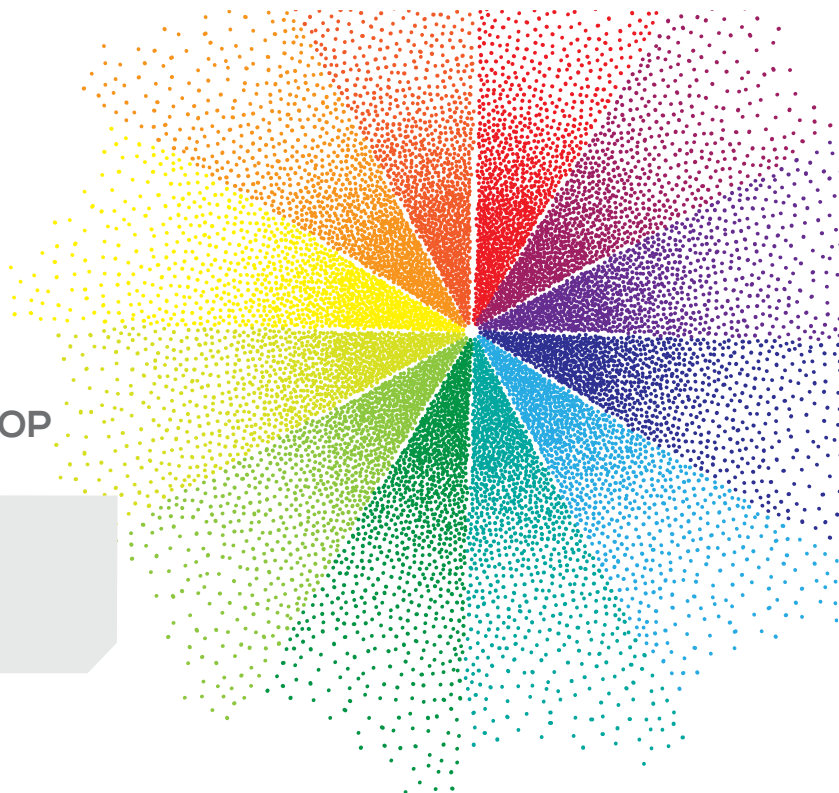

All participants will receive 7 contact hours toward CDE license renewal. One half graduate level credits are available through Adams State University for $27.50.

Questions?

Please contact Michelle Shedro:
(720) 904-8890 ext. 101 or michelle@think360arts.org.

Register online at think360arts.org

and click on "Attend a Training"

Curious about arts integration?

As part of our ongoing professional development series, this winter workshop is based on The Institute for Creative Teaching, our highly successful summer intensive. This class is open to teachers of ALL grade levels and content areas.

Practices in Arts Integration will:

- Introduce you to the principles and practice of arts integration and aesthetic education through study with Donna Goodwin from The Morgridge College of Education at the University of Denver.
- Provide hands-on workshops with professional teaching artists, giving you useful ideas and activities for your classrooms.
- Include opportunities for dialogue with teachers who have expertise in implementing arts integration practices into their teaching.

Teaching Artists:

- Jennifer Ghormley, Visual artist
- Bob Hall, African drummer
- Patti Smithsonian, Theatre artist

