

National Endowment for the Humanities Summer Stipends FY 2016

FAU deadline: August 17

NEH deadline: October 1

Program Overview

The National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) Summer Stipends Program supports individuals pursuing advanced research that is valuable to scholars and general audiences in the humanities. Awardees typically produce articles, monographs, books, digital materials, archaeological site reports, translations, educational and other scholarly tools. This stipend supports full-time work on a humanities project for a period of two months. Successful applicants receive an outright award of $6,000.

Summer Stipends customarily support work carried out during the summer, though arrangements can be made for other times of the year. This program accepts applications from researchers, teachers, and writers regardless of their institutional affiliation. Only individual applicants are eligible to apply. Applicants with college or university affiliations, however, must be nominated by their institutions. (Only non-faculty members, adjunct and part-time faculty and independent scholars may apply online without a nomination).

FAU Application Process

As with all U.S. higher education institutions, FAU may nominate two faculty members. Junior or senior faculty members may be nominated. NEH defines junior nominees as academic applicants at the rank of Assistant Professor or Instructor or who are at comparably early stages of their careers. Those holding the rank of Associate Professor or Professor will be considered senior nominees. FAU will form an internal ad-hoc committee to review the applications and select the nominee if there are several individuals who would like to be considered as a campus nominee. If you are planning to apply, please familiarize yourself with the guidelines and application instructions on the NEH website.

To be considered for nomination by FAU, faculty must submit a brief one-page summary of the proposed project to Camille E. Coley, J.D., CRA, Associate Vice President, at ccoley@fau.edu no later than Monday, Aug. 17. If there are more than two applications in each ranking on any campus, an ad hoc committee will be convened to select the nominees.

You will be notified by Monday, Aug. 31, whether or not you have been selected to submit a full application. The NEH submission deadline is Oct. 1.
