EMPLOYEE PROFILE

George Thomas, AIA, CPM, NCARB Senior Associate

George Thomas, AIA, CPM, NCARB has 25 years' experience in the architectural industry working for private architectural firms. George's professional architectural portfolio includes K-12 education, transportation, civic/government, commercial, residential, and health care projects throughout the United States. He is a registered architect in Florida, Texas, and NCARB certified. During his tenure at CTH+A, he has managed several projects for clients including The School District of Osceola County, Orange County Public Schools, Orange County, The First Academy, and Goodwill Industries.

George is a Floridian, having grown up in the City of St. Petersburg where he attended the public elementary, middle, and high schools of Pinellas County. He first became interested in architecture in high school by reading books about Frank Lloyd Wright and Louis Kahn, both famous American architects.

After graduating from high school, George went to the University of Florida, and graduated with a Bachelor of Arts in Architecture degree. While attending the University of Florida, he studied with some of Central Florida's most prominent architects including CTH+A's Tim McNicholas. After working for a few years, George went to the University of South Florida and graduated with a Master of Architecture degree.

After college, George worked in Lakeland, Florida where he met his wife; who was a client at the time. They moved to Houston, Texas in 1990 where he worked for firms specializing in health care, transportation, and K-12 Education. He has completed aviation projects at George Bush International Airport and many educational projects throughout the southeastern United States.

In 2000, George and his family moved to Central Florida and started working on projects at Orlando International Airport and several K-12 school districts throughout Central Florida.

George and his wife have two children in college. His son is attending Florida State and his daughter is attending the University of Florida. In his spare time, George enjoys playing golf and sailing. In fact, he is currently working on obtaining his Blue Water Sailing Certification.
