

Westminster Presbyterian Church
Social Justice Workshop

Saturday, April 23 | 10am to 3pm
Food Justice in an Age of #BlackLivesMatter & Climate Change: Open Mind, Warm Heart, Willing Hands
Presented by Andrew Kang Bartlett

What does our faith call us toward? What do future generations need from us now? When racism, inequality, violence and environmental challenges seem as acute as ever, how do we factor in efforts to make our food and farm system more democratic and just? As humanity becomes aware of the intersections between these issues, what special gifts can Christians contribute? Explore these questions and more in this special workshop at Westminster Presbyterian Church: Morning session at the church from 10 am-noon; followed by a no-cost lunch and optional site visits from 1-3 pm. This is a rare opportunity to hear a leading voice on hunger issues and will be well-attended, so make your reservations soon! Register with Dan Franklin, dfranklin@wpc-mpls.org, no later than April 18.

Due to construction at Westminster, there will be no parking at the church. Free, vouchered, parking will be available at Central Lutheran Church in the surface lot only (do not enter the ramp). Due to an event at the Minneapolis Convention Center, parking will be on a first come, first parked, basis.

Andrew Kang Bartlett is the National Associate for Hunger Concerns of the Presbyterian Hunger Program of the Presbyterian Church (USA). Prior to coming to the Hunger Program in 2001, Andrew Kang Bartlett worked with non-profit organizations in the San Francisco Bay Area on human rights, environmental health, people-centered development and social justice issues. Kang Bartlett also lived in Japan and East Asia for five years, three of those as a Presbyterian missionary doing community organizing and civil rights work with Koreans in Japan.
