Course news with Carey Spence!

The past few weeks' weather has taken a toll on the golf course. 10" of rain was recorded in an 8 day period. Then on Monday April 27th 3 1/2" of rain fell and high winds scattered tree limbs and other debris throughout the property. The above normal rainfall has created some issues with the greens. Algae has formed which is causing the turf to thin out. Products have been applied to suppress the algae growth. What is needed most is for the rain to stay away for a while to allow the greens and everything else to dry up.

The greens are scheduled to be drilled (aerified) on Wednesday May 6th, weather permitting.

The over seeded areas on the greens, tee boxes, and green surrounds will begin to die off due to the warm temperatures. The base Bermuda grass will begin to grow 24/7 during May.

BJ Antill's Golf Tip of the Month

The issue I see that causes so many poor shots around the green is the hands and wrists trying to scoop the ball in the air. The scooping action results in shots that are bladed over the green or hit fat and fall short of the target. The scooping action of your hands and wrists causes the shaft of the club to lean away from the target at impact. It also takes away all feel you have for the shot. Imagine holding a hammer with the head hanging down and trying to hit a nail. If you want to strike the ball solidly you must use a technique that creates a forward leaning shaft at impact. The most effective way to get use to this is look at your address position face on in a mirror. Your address position needs to have a majority of your weight on your left side and use it as a base or foundation of a descending angle to the ball and it will help you keep your hands ahead of the club head which will lead to better, more consistent shots.
