

Colorado Annual Student Water Field Conference

September 23-25, 2016

Hosted by Colorado Mesa University, Grand Junction, Colo.

Interested in water in Colorado and the Colorado River?

Apply to participate in the third Annual Colorado Student Water Field Conference!

ITINERARY

FRIDAY: Dinner at Fruita State Park

SATURDAY: Tour of river restoration and diversions along Colorado River's Riverfront Trail in Grand Junction, Colorado followed by a farm tour and a farm dinner in the lower Grand Valley

SUNDAY: Students work in groups to develop plans for sharing what they have learned when they return home

Students from the 2014 Colorado Student Water Field Conference visiting the fish screen on the Grand Valley Irrigation Company canal in Palisade, Colorado.

LODGING/MEALS: Camping at Fruita State Park. Tents available if needed. All lunches and dinners will be provided. Students and faculty will be responsible for their transportation to and from Grand Junction, CO.

REGISTRATION: Early bird registration ends May 20. To apply, please submit a brief personal statement expressing your interest in Colorado water and why you want to participate in the field conference via email to watercenter@coloradomesa.edu. Upon acceptance, a registration fee of $20 will be assessed to affirm your registration in the program. Attendance will be limited to 30 students.

WHO SHOULD APPLY?: Undergraduate and graduate students from any Colorado university interesting in deepening their studies and understanding of Colorado water.

For additional information, contact Gigi Richard at:

970.248.1689

grichard@coloradomesa.edu