

Radio Festivals Music Community Volunteer Education Events Join Us!

With your support, KVMR underwent big changes this year, including the move into our permanent home in downtown Nevada City. This historic KVMR/Nevada Theatre partnership makes it easier for both of us to focus on our community-driven missions while increasing vitality in the downtown area. Since the move, KVMR offers many new & upgraded services, including house concerts, in-studio performances of local and touring musicians, and a modernized venue for interviews and forums. All that and a community room, available to local organizations.

The new facilities inspired the community to dig in even more, sharing talent and time. In April, we hosted a broadcaster training class for 30 individuals throughout the region to join the KVMR on-air cast. New archives (available at kvmr.org) provide on-demand listening, so now you “can’t miss” a favorite show. Another enthusiastic volunteer developed apps for KVMR- your portable device is now a KVMR tuner! Our revitalized internship program is ensuring the next generation of high school and college students will carry the values of community radio into the future.

In May, KVMR hosted a community radio regional summit, bringing over 90 radio representatives from the Western U.S. to collaborate and share ideas about radio. And this summer KVMR provided vital updates on the Lowell fire, and hosted the Fire Safe Council to inform listeners about how they can proactively safeguard their property and, more importantly, their lives.

At year's end we reflect gratefully on our successes while bidding a sad farewell to independent and community stations sold or closed due to lack of funding- KPRI San Diego, KPVL Iowa, and WKCC Illinois, among others who no longer retain their local format. With the state of commercial free media in flux, we're so grateful to our supporters, like you, who are committed to local, independent radio.

Since the move, KVMR offers many new & upgraded services, including house concerts, in-studio performances of local and touring musicians, and a modernized venue for interviews and forums.

Please help keep your community station vibrant by offering a year-end gift to KVMR.

Warm Regards,

Julie Chiarelli - KVMR General Manager
