TOPICS TO BE DISCUSSED

The globalization of the world economy has placed critical links in the manufacturing & logistics supply chain. As the economies of nations become interwoven, the competition for natural resources, global influence and military superiority has escalated – leaving the probability of a serious supply chain compromise a near statistical certainty. Not only do U.S. adversaries use access to the supply chain to pursue technologies and gain access to sensitive systems, foreign manufacturers can also, simply and effectively, insert counterfeit parts into products destined for the United States and degrade the performance of U.S. systems.
