Micro Needling Therapy, Skin Needling, Collagen Induction Therapy or Percutaneous Collagen Induction

Skin needling, also called Micro Needling Therapy, Collagen Induction Therapy (CIT), and Percutaneous Collagen Induction (PCI), is a minimally invasive skin-rejuvenation procedure that involves the use of a device that contains fine needles. The needles are used to puncture the skin to create a controlled skin injury. Each puncture creates a channel that triggers the body to fill these microscopic wounds by producing new collagen and elastin without the heat trauma or expense of a laser. As a result, patients report less pain, quicker recovery and greater efficacy. Looking at the skin after a treatment on a microscopic level, one would see thousands of microchannels in the skin. These tiny channels act as a conduit for enhancing topical preparations, such as growth factors and peptides, at the cellular level of the skin. Growth factors and peptides are the building blocks for new collagen and elastic development.

Through the process of neovascularization and neocollagenesis, there is improvement in:

Skin texture and firmer looking skin with renewed rejuvenation
 Reduction in scars, pore size, and stretch marks
 Softens the appearance of fine lines and deep wrinkles
 Helps skin damaged by photoaging
 Almost all skin types can be treated
 Thickens the dermis without damaging or removing epidermis
 Extremely high absorption of any active ingredients
