

AIA Central Pennsylvania

A Chapter of The American Institute of Architects

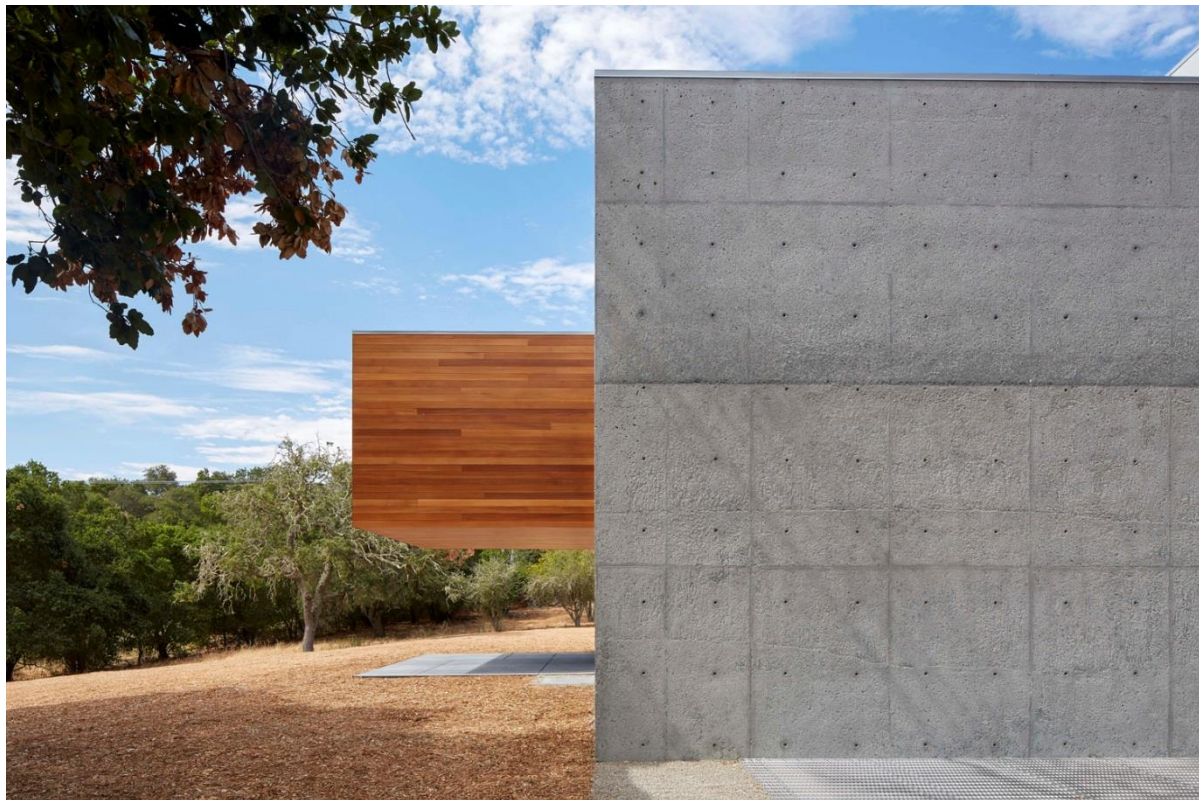

2015 Fall Lecture Series

By Daniel R. Godfrey Jr., AIA, LEED AP

The 2015 AIA Central Pennsylvania Lecture Series will conclude on Thursday, November 19th in York with a presentation by Washington DC based Architect David Jameson at 7pm at the office of LSC Design.

David Jameson Architect Inc. has been awarded by the AIA locally and nationally and has been recognized by numerous publications for their commitment to design excellence. A desire to “build super-compelling buildings for the ages” has earned David Jamison a spot among premier residential architects. The March /April 2013 Residential Architect cover story was an appropriate celebration of the firms work. The article states that David “loves confounding people’s expectations of the stereotypical black-turtleneck-wearing, square bespectacled architect” and so it is with great anticipation that AIA Central PA announces this lecture.

Please join us! Look for registration details on our website: <http://aiacentralpa.org/>

Registration for AIA Members & Students is just $10! We continue to pursue sponsors for the lecture series which is only possible with everyone's generous support.

Thank you!