What's Love Got to Do with It?: The Challenge of Human Relationships

ANTHONY WILGUS M.S.W. FACULTY EMERITUS

Anthony Wilgus M.S.W. is Social Work Faculty Emeritus at the University of Findlay, Board Member of Healthy Congregations

The initial step toward managing oneself in the intensity of relationships experienced by all humans is that of understanding what is transpiring. This presentation will describe these common patterns of interaction, their origins, and the routes that some individuals have taken in order to function a little more effectively in their relationships.
