CONNECTICUT PREMIERE

Israel, 2014, English and Hebrew with English subtitles, 87 minutes

Director: Laura Bialis

On the edge of Israel's Negev Desert on the Gaza border lies Sderot, a missile - battered city of factory workers and children of immigrants from North Africa and the Middle East. Despite living in the "bomb shelter capital of the world", Sderot's people persevere under fire through music. In underground clubs, young artists transform Israel's ethnic pop-rock music scene, creating vibrant rhythms fusing East and West. California filmmaker Laura Bialis encounters a creative community that captivates her, leads her to love and changes her life. This raw and heartbreaking tale of rhythm, rockets and romance on the frontlines is ultimately hopeful.
