An Answered Prayer

Donna Bryant

As a mom, nothing is harder than watching your child suffer and not being able to do anything about it. When my son was 4 years old he came into my room in the middle of the night. He was crying and tugging on his ear. He was in a lot of pain. We lived in a small country town and because it was the middle of the night we could not get to a doctor. I felt so bad for him. I really wanted to help but there wasn't much I could do to bring him comfort. My son crawled into my bed and I held him close. I told him "Let's ask God to heal your ear." My son said a simple prayer asking God to heal him. After he finished praying he fell asleep in my arms. The next morning when he woke up he excitedly told me, "Mommy, my ear doesn't hurt anymore. God healed me!" Even now, eight years later, my son still recalls that night when God touched him and healed his body. It is his testimony. Prayer does work. It does change your situation. I felt so humbled and grateful that night. When I think of how the God of the universe is concerned about me and my child. God cares about even the things you may think too insignificant to bother God with. That night my son got a revelation of the God who cares about every part of his life. God revealed Himself in that moment to a four year old child and at the same time reminded me of His faithfulness.

Bring even the little things to God. He wants to listen and He wants to respond.
