XAVIER MCELRATH-BEY

*The remarkable story profiled by
The New York Times
& Chicago Tribune*

At 13, this native Chicagoan went to prison for murder.
Released at 26, McElrath-Bey has made it his life's work to reform the juvenile justice system.
Now 39, he holds three college degrees and is an advocate for the Washington, D.C.-based Campaign for the Fair Sentencing of Youth organization. Come hear about his traumatic childhood, the most regretted day of his life, and the importance of age-appropriate & trauma-informed consequences for children in the justice system.
