

Love is the pure essence of our very being. It is the breath of life. It is what binds us together. To love is to survive, to create and to hold one another in golden arms of peace. It is our greatest ability, our greatest gift and is that which will never escape us as the powerful spirits we are...

You are love