ERB Standardized Testing – April 23, 2015
All Middle School students will be taking ERB tests during the school day on Thursday, April 23, 2015. The purpose of the ERB testing is to provide an opportunity for students to experience standardized, timed exams in preparation for other exams that they may take when in the Upper School. It also allows us the opportunity to get a measurement (among others) of how each child is progressing academically relative to his/her abilities. Results of the ERB are used to determine eligibility for the Center for Talented Youth from Johns Hopkins University (CTY) Program. The program is geared towards those students who might also be referred to as “gifted and talented” and the CTY definition is a student who has scored at or above the 95th percentile. A good nights rest is the only preparation needed.
