

Remos Lenio

Managing Director

Remos Lenio has a background in corporate finance where he has over 25 years of experience representing buyers and sellers of businesses and clients seeking financing. After receiving his M.B.A. from the Ross School of Business at the University of Michigan and a B.S in Business from Central Michigan University, Remos began his professional career in the workout division of a large money center bank, which was established to resolve troubled oil and gas credits originated by the Penn Square Bank. He next served in the merchant banking division of a regional bank that was established to invest in the equity of troubled or underperforming companies. From there, Remos became the CFO of a troubled holding company where he was responsible for winding down the troubled divisions and selling the healthy divisions. Subsequently, he worked in the corporate finance division of a regional accounting firm where he was responsible for the west Michigan practice from where he left to form Hartwick Capital, a boutique merchant bank, which merged with DWA to form DWH in 2009.

Remos is an accomplished and experienced transaction specialist having significant experience with mergers, acquisitions, purchase, sales and buyouts of privately held companies, recapitalizations, startups, and valuations of companies by and for investors across many industries, including manufacturing, distribution, agriculture, service, and energy. He brings his expertise to DWH clients as he assists them with transactions, investments, capital sourcing, company portfolio management, and valuations.

As a Managing Partner, Remos is very hands-on and is personally involved with many projects, advising well over 100 companies with regards to their sale, purchase, or financing options, and performing hundreds of valuations both for internal use and as finished work product for clients. Much of his work is with clients going through transition – helping them to recapitalize or reposition for a future under different ownership or with different capital partners supporting their growth. He has also been a part of structuring deals to assist with generational transitions.
