Description:

One of the top reasons mothers stop breastfeeding is because of concerns about a medication they need to take while breastfeeding and the lack of good information available to her to help make an informed decision about that medication. We are also facing increasing numbers of babies exposed to opioids and marijuana during breastfeeding. In this presentation, we will learn about medication transfer into breastmilk and resources for good information about medication and breastfeeding. Then we will explore the evidence about neonatal abstinence syndrome, and opioid and marijuana use during breastfeeding to address and counsel women and providers in your hospital or community.
