

PIRC Announces Change in Program Name

You may have heard us talking.

The Central Pennsylvania Immigration Project (CPIP) is now the

Immigrant Survivors Project (ISP)

We started out in York County as a working group of volunteers coordinating efforts to help immigrant victims of violence with their immigration legal needs and their victim-related needs for safety, shelter, and counseling. The CPIP name was chosen at the time to reflect the goal of serving survivors throughout south central PA. We now serve nine counties in south central Pennsylvania.

Immigrant Survivors Project—our Program name reflects our admiration for the immigrant women, men and children who survive violence and who have the resiliency to build new lives of hope and opportunity. Immigrant Survivors Project speaks about the passion we have for serving immigrant survivors and for connecting them with tools and resources to help them reach their dreams.*

While our program name has changed, our commitment to working together to serve the immigrant survivors in our communities has not. We are more energized than ever and are very grateful for your partnership and support in providing services to immigrant survivors.

If you'd like to discuss the name change, the work we do together, or our vision for serving immigrant survivors in the future, please don't hesitate to contact me.

Warm wishes,
