FAITH CHAT

In today's gospel, Jesus teaches about the future; his words deal with cosmic events, his final coming in power to overcome darkness, and his drawing the elect into the light of his final glory. Jesus tells his contemporaries that they must be constantly waiting and watching for divine presence and action, for the time of completing God's plan of salvation is known to none but God alone. What are some signs that Christ is near me?

Family Together: To help your family focus on the promise of happiness with God forever in heaven, take a walk in nature. Notice how nature is getting ready for winter. Talk about the promise of new life in spring.

Prepare for next week: Read and reflect on Christ the King (beginning on p. 418 in "Living Liturgy" missal).

November gales from powerful streams of grace: Prayers between earth and heaven

“When the gales of November came early —” That line from the song, “Wreck of the Edmund Fitzgerald” has been like an earworm all week as the media highlights the 40th Anniversary of the freighter's sinking.

Great Lakes sailors call the gales of November the “Witch of November” because the rapidly changing weather patterns make it difficult to navigate the waters. When I worked at the newspaper, it seemed as though every November, at least one person would be swept off a pier into Lake Michigan.

We Catholic-Christians are certainly familiar with the gales of November. As the special shrine in church reminds us, this is a month of special commemoration for those who have died.

When I close my eyes and enter into deep prayer for the people who have passed on, I can sense powerful streams of grace flowing between us, earth, the saints in heaven, and the poor souls in purgatory in between.

Try it. Close your eyes. Become aware of your breathing. Call to mind people you know who have died — those in your own life; those more famous. Ask God to be with them.

Let your prayer flow directly from the emotion of your heart. When we are our best selves, we want every person who has died to be at peace in God's presence; to know love and gratitude. When we are at our worst, a part of us might wish upon them a bit of punishment for the hurt they caused on earth. In the end, we keep letting them go, placing them in the gales of God's mercy.

And it's very windy because all of our prayers are converging with the stronger prayers of the saints in heaven.

One of those saints, Bernard the Abbot, reminds us that the goal of every Christian is to “share in the citizenship of heaven.”

“Calling the saints to mind inspires, or rather arouses in us, ... a longing to join their company,” St. Bernard writes.

But here's the problem: We get caught up in the winds of earth; our preoccupation with stuff. That intensifies even more with the holidays approaching.

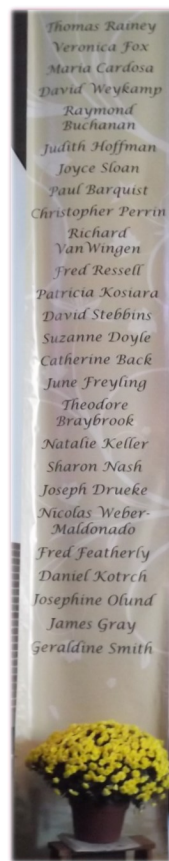

Ironically, as our culture prepares to celebrate Thanksgiving and our Christian belief that God became a human being in Christ, we forget about the divine company.

“The saints want us to be with them, and we are indifferent,” St. Bernard says. “The souls of the just await us, and we ignore them.”

Life can seem very difficult to navigate during these darkening days of autumn.

We find our footing by practicing our religion. Call upon the saints. Come to Mass. Don't allow yourself to sink into selfishness or despair. If you get swept off a pier, have it be from a gale of grace, and fall into the arms of God's mystery.

Growing in Christ

Weekly Stewardship Report

STEWARDSHIP THOUGHT: In this Sunday's Gospel, Jesus invites us to "learn a lesson from the fig tree". The fig tree's new growth points to something larger happening with the seasons. As stewards, our actions should point to something larger: Jesus Christ. Pope Francis has the world buzzing because he's living the Gospel in authentic and faith-filled ways. He's being a steward of the life God has given him. If we are being good stewards, like Pope Francis, others will recognize Christ through us in how we give of our time, our love, our mercy, and even in our money. In what way can you grow more Christ-like in one of the many ways you give this week? by Andy Rebollar, Pastoral Associate for Parish Life

Catholic Campaign for Human Development

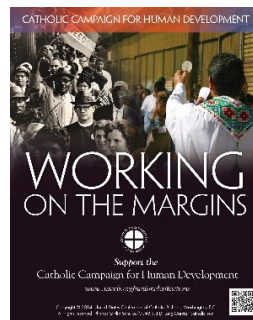

BISHOP DAVID WALKOWIAK

Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ,

During World Youth Day 2013, Pope Francis said, "The measure of greatness of a society is found in the way it treats those most in need." Through his words and actions, Pope Francis continues to draw our attention back to the Gospel message concerning care of the poor and our responsibility toward them. The Catholic Campaign for Human Development (CCHD) responds by addressing the root causes of poverty in the United States.

November 22 has been designated as the CCHD national collection in our parishes. This collection is the primary source of funding for the CCHD's anti-poverty grants and education programs by giving a "hand up," rather than a "handout." CCHD helps people living in poverty join together to identify problems, make decisions, and find solutions to improve their lives and neighborhoods.

Of the CCHD funds collected in our parishes, 25 percent is retained by our diocese to help fund local anti-poverty projects. Through your generosity in 2014 four programs in West Michigan received grants. One such outreach is the Salvation Army's Congregational Partnership Program. Using the rapid rehousing model, this program assists homeless families to obtain long-term stable housing pairing them with local church congregations. Another is Catholic Charities West Michigan's Pregnancy Support Services which offers help and support to women throughout their pregnancies.

CCHD funded organizations that address poverty issues in a variety of areas including housing, education, neighborhood improvement, and criminal justice reform. One such organization, Ex-prisoners and Prisoners Organizing for Community Advancement (EPOCA), works to change the future for men and women returning to society after incarceration. Since its inception, EPOCA has steadily grown in membership, influence, and vision. Today, its diverse team works with allies to win legislative victories that improve the lives of families around the country.

The CCHD collection offers new hope to those living in poverty throughout the United States. May our experience of God's love continue to open our heart to those in need and move us to action.

Thank you for your continued support of this important outreach of the Church. For more information about the CCHD collection and the groups it funds, please visit www.povertyusa.org.

Sincerely in Christ,

+ David J. Walkowiak
