

CLIMATE CHANGE: OUR CALL TO CONVERSION

Produced by the Intercommunity Peace & Justice Center, this four-session 34-page booklet is a boundless source of information on climate change, providing up-to-date statistical and scientific data, spiritual reflections, food for thought, and opportunities for action.

- Designed to enable communities or small groups to gather together for reflection, education, and action on ecology and sustainability issues
- Lack of multimedia approach makes it more suitable for an adult audience, although action steps might easily engage young audiences with their everyday practicality
- Reflection questions are geared towards community-building and deepening personal knowledge
- Commentary puts accent on spiritual enrichment and reflection through interfaith prayers that often call for moments of silence
- Facilitator's guide helps leaders step-by-step as they prepare to moderate group reflections
- Stories offered as examples on climate change are international as well as US-based
- Statistical and scientific data are supported by graphics and maps
- Sessions are featured in a way that they can be used individually as source for reflection without consulting the whole booklet
- Workbook's cost: $5.00 plus shipping
