Eye care for the way you live today...and tomorrow.

End of Summer REMEMBER TO SCHEDULE YOUR CHILD'S EYE EXAM.

Summer is almost over! The children are about ready to go back to school. We have spent our summer outdoors at picnics, swimming, boating, camping, biking, playing baseball and taking long walks. We have been on vacations with the family to either view local sites or far-away places. We now look forward to Labor Day

The department stores are beginning to remind us that summer will be ending soon and 'back to school' sales become the topic of conversation. The list of school supplies for each school and grade gets printed and parents flock to the stores to purchase them before the supplies run out.

Missing from this to-do list is the annual eye exam. Since children continually grow, a yearly eye exam is recommended. Glasses prescriptions change as fast as outgrowing last year's school clothes.

College bound students tend to have a shortened summer as they begin to head off to school mid-August. Have they updated their prescriptions? For contact lens wearers, are their backup glasses up- to-date? We hope back to school sales should get parents thinking about back to school eye exams.

Call us now to schedule those important appointments. Be sure your children are primed for success with clear vision at the start the new school year.

Dr. Jacobi is an optometrist at Suburban Eye Care with an office in Livonia. He welcomes patients of all ages into his practice and accepts most insurance plans.
