“Rediscovering Abundance:”

North Dakota Horticulture, Past, Present & Future”
August 14-15, Medora, ND

Come to a time of renewal and inspiration as we explore the dynamic ways horticulture has impacted North Dakota these past 92 years.

Neal Holland, NDSU Professor Emeritus of Horticulture will begin our journey together Friday August 14 at 9:00 a.m. at Badlands Ministries south of Medora.

Neal will share reflections from over 8 decades of observations as a student, professor, award winning plant breeder, respected researcher and nurseryman serving North Dakota, Minnesota, and southern Canada.

Dr. Todd West of NDSU will highlight Friday night’s steak barbecue by sharing hopes and dreams as he works to increase the diversity of trees and shrubs adapted to North Dakota.

Bring a plant or be a generous bidder at a silent auction to benefit NDSU and Bottineau horticulture scholarships.

Receive a new plant variety for free.

Dr.’s Lee Manske and Carolyn Godfread will help us identify the natural strengths of our locales to maximize plant growth, beauty and productivity while decreasing personal stress, expense, and time in the garden.

Chuck Weiser will share how he has learned to grow acres of top quality salable melons and other vegetables during our short seasons even in cool summers!

Karol Lowe and Sonja Stomswold will give us new ideas of how to enjoy gardening, even if you live in an apartment or have terrible soil or other difficult growing conditions.

Tours to local yards will show how some Medora and rural residents have adapted to the rigorous growing conditions of the Badlands.
