Ken Sparks

Ken Sparks is the winningest active head coach in the country with 325 wins, 89 loss and two ties. Sparks passed legendary Alabama head coach Bear Bryant with a win on homecoming in 2014 over North Greenville.

A native of Knoxville, Tenn., Sparks began his coaching career at Gibbs High School in Knoxville, restarting the football program with a winning season. Later he would serve as offensive coordinator for then-Carson-Newman head coach Dal Shealy and oversee the track program. With Sparks running the offense, the 1972 Eagles advanced to their first-ever NAIA Champion Bowl, falling to East Texas State. After three seasons, Sparks was asked to take command of the Carson-Newman football program.

He is reluctant to shine the spotlight on himself and his accomplishments. Sparks would instead rather be measured by his impact in the lives of the young men and coaches who've been a part of his Carson-Newman family. In 2013 he was presented the Uncommon Award by former NFL coach Tony Dungy for "uncommon leadership through character and faith." Sparks has called the Uncommon Award one of the most meaningful of his career along with the lifetime achievement award from the FCA because of what they stand for.
