

Chairman's Corner

All around us candidates and their supporters are ramping up their campaigns for the 2016 elections. Local, county, state, and national offices are being contested. And, of course, the most important is the Presidency.

I am sure we will have strong Democratic contenders for each office. I believe you will agree with me that any of our Democratic Presidential candidates is more capable than all of the Republican aspirants together.

We must do our utmost to support all of our candidates, especially for local and county offices. In time they could progress to state and national office. We can give them our time, effort, and money.

It will be difficult for anyone to fill the shoes of Barak Hussain Obama. He has managed to fulfill most of the promises he made to us, even with a recalcitrant Congress. Even we activists may not be familiar with all of his accomplishments. I urge you to read the article in Huffington Post, The Nation He Built, for Michael Grunwald's opinion, with which I wholeheartedly agree. On another note, I have commented several times that while each of us may have a bone to pick with another person in the Central Committee, it would be best if we took the opportunity to discuss our disagreements only with that person. Please do not send these types of emails to the RCDP's complete membership. Others do not need to read your wrath. We all know that with the push of a few buttons an email can take on a life of its own and spread throughout the world, even to the press.
