

Snow Turns KDS Campus into Winter Wonderland

Frigid temperatures and the threat of ice during the last two weeks of February caused safety concerns and closed schools all across North Alabama. But on February 25, Gunter Mountain finally received the snowfall the students had been praying for. The winter storm left 11 ½ inches of snow, blanketing the KDS campus in white and making national news headlines. On March 5th Gunter Mountain awakened to freezing rain that covered the trees and everything else above the ground. The record snowfall and ice event caused no major problems for the school and made for a truly beautiful and picturesque landscape.

The 11½ inches of snow turned the KDS campus into a winter wonderland and folks on Gunter Mountain were excited to hear Grant, Alabama mentioned on Fox News and other national media reports.

The March 5th ice event also made a beautiful sight as the next day dawned bright and sunny on the icy trees.
