INTERIOR DESIGN

"Home For the Holidays"
Paris Forino's Sensational Collector's Room
Holiday House NYC, 2 East 63rd Street, November 11th - December 2nd

NEW YORK - (November 11, 2015)-- Australian Interior Designer Paris Forino debuts her room at the highly anticipated designer showcase, Holiday House NYC. As a first time participant in the annual Upper East Side showhouse benefiting the Breast Cancer Research Foundation® (BCRF), Forino will launch a chic urban bedroom reminiscent of owners who have just returned home from a well-traveled holiday.

Forino's concept, incredibly unique as it is cozy, is a bedroom draped with newly purchased, radiant treasures from the recent journey: a French art Deco tea set, Norwegian totems, Iranian tea vessels. A vintage kimono chest and monogrammed steamer trunk are freshly left out to be unpacked. Forino's vision is to emphasize the owner's trusted travel elements from the chic getaway with the relief, excitement, and familiarity of returning home. With natural light spilling into the space, the bedroom becomes an oasis of comfort proving there is nowhere you'd rather be than home, surrounded by family and friends for the holidays.

"A true curated collector's room" - Paris Forino says of her space at Holiday House NYC

To further curate her vision, Forino tapped into New York City artisans for furniture and lighting including Dmitriy & Co., Apparatus Studio, BDDW, Brentano's, Atelier Violet, Bianco Light + Space, Anna Karlin, Dustin Yellin, and John Lyle Design. The gorgeous custom mohair, pistachio colored area rug was made by Sacco Carpet from their mill in South Africa. On display are beautiful oil paintings on linen, shaped canvases by Pamela Jorden, all on loan via Klaus von Nichtssagend Gallery.

For Forino, her passion for this project runs deeper than her obvious design talent. "As a woman owned business, we strongly believe in supporting women's health issues worldwide. Holiday House NYC is a great opportunity to partner with our local community to raise funds for The Breast Cancer Research Foundation."

Holiday House

About Holiday House: Holiday House was founded in 2008 by interior designer Iris Dankner to raise awareness and funds for breast cancer. It was the first showhouse in New York City to benefit a breast cancer organization. Having survived the disease through early detection, Iris has made it her mission to support breast cancer research and help women who are facing the same fight. Combining her passion for design and her efforts to help others, Iris has consistently recruited top interior designers from across the country and beyond to transform the historic Academy Mansion on the Upper East Side into Holiday House, which today is counted among Manhattan's premier designer showhouses.
