ADMIRAL RAYMOND SPRUANCE, CLASS OF 1902* (1886-1969)

 Spruance graduated in 1902 before the school's move to its current location. He entered and graduated from the U.S. Naval Academy prior to WWII. Spruance served aboard a battleship participating in the Great White Fleet's historic circumnavigation of the globe (1907-1909). By the start of WWII, he had attained the rank of Rear Admiral. He commanded forces during many major naval and amphibious engagements, including the battles of Midway, Philippine Sea, Iwo Jima and Okinawa. Before retiring from the U.S. Navy in 1948 as a four-star admiral, Spruance served as president of the Naval War College. After retiring, he served as the U.S. ambassador to the Philippines from 1952 to 1955.

Admiral Spruance's flagship during much of the war, as commander of the Fifth Fleet, was the heavy cruiser USS Indianapolis. Two other naval ships have been named in his honor.

MARYLYN (GLICK) KOFFMAN, CLASS OF 1940*

 Marilyn (Koffman) "Bunny" Glick was one of Indiana's most generous philanthropists. She led civic groups, founded charitable programs, and gave generously to the causes she championed. Marilyn and Gene Glick's $30 million gift funded the Glick Eye Institute at the Indiana University School of Medicine, the Indianapolis Cultural Trail, the Indiana Authors Award, and a wide array of charitable projects benefitting the arts, education, public health, and aid organizations.

The Glicks' partnership coincided with the greatest housing boom in U.S. history; by 1962, their company was the largest builder of single family homes and later, apartment communities in Indiana.

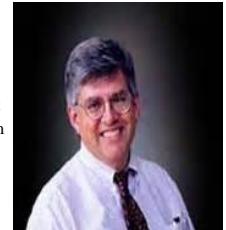

Her personal leadership contributions included the Indiana State Symphony Society and its Young Audiences program, and she founded People of Vision to support Prevent Blindness Indiana. She was a major benefactor of numerous Jewish programs and services locally.

Aside from her civic and community activities, Glick began collecting glass art in the 1980s and was one of the nation's most noted studio glass collectors. This love of art glass inspired the gift to Ball State University to construct the Glick Center for Glass, a hot-glass studio and instruction center.

THOMAS S. ULEN, PH.D., CLASS OF 1964

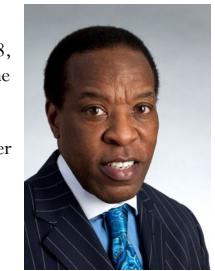

Thomas Ulen graduated from Dartmouth College in 1968; he served in the Peace Corps in Korea before going to St. Catherine's College, University of Oxford, and Stanford University where he received his Ph.D. in economics in 1979. He joined the economics faculty at the University of Illinois in 1977 and moved to the law school faculty in 1982. In 2002, he was named a Swanlund Chair at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, one of the highest honors the University bestows. Tom received an honorary doctorate from Katholieke Universiteit Leuven, Belgium, in 2005.

Tom's textbook with Robert D. Cooter, Law and Economics, is now in its sixth edition and has been translated into Chinese, Japanese, Korean, Italian, Spanish, French, Slovenian, Russian, and other languages. He is the author of nearly 100 articles in scholarly journals and several other professional books.

DARRELL BURKS, CLASS OF 1974

After graduating from I.U. with a bachelors degree in finance (with distinction) in 1978, Darrell joined PricewaterCoopers, LLP (formerly Coopers & Lybrand in Indianapolis); he transferred to Detroit, MI, in 1986. He received a CPA certification in 1980. Burks was admitted to the partnership in 1991. For over 30 years, Burks delivered the full range of audit and related business advisory services to clients in the retail, government, and higher education sectors and others for real estate, manufacturing, and financial services companies. He was the partner in charge of the Education and Nonprofit practice for the Midwest Region of PricewaterhouseCoopers, LLP.

A loaned executive to the city of Detroit from 1989-1991, Darrell served as Chief Financial Officer of Detroit Public Schools. He managed an operating budget of approximately $1 billion, developed managerial accountability for 20,000 employees at 250 schools, developed and coordinated financing strategies to eliminate a $160 million deficit that had accumulated over 17 years.

Darrell Burks is recognized as a leader and key decision maker in the City of Detroit; he was appointed by the Governor of Michigan to the Detroit Financial Advisory Board.

WALLACE TERRY, CLASS OF 1956*

A Shortridge Daily Echo editor and Brown University Daily Herald reporter, Wallace Terry was an award-winning journalist, news commentator and bestselling author distinguished for his coverage of the Vietnam War and the Civil Rights Movement. He was best known for his book about black soldiers in Vietnam, Bloods: An Oral History of the Vietnam War (1984), which served as a basis for the 1995 film, Dead Presidents.

At 19, Terry was hired by the Washington Post in 1960; he also had a distinguishing career for Time magazine. In 1967, Terry left for Vietnam; he became deputy bureau chief for Time in Saigon, the first black war correspondent on permanent duty. He covered numerous assault troop combat missions with American and South Vietnamese pilots. Fellow reporters admired his rescue of the bodies of four newsmen killed by the Viet Cong in May 1968.

Though primarily a journalist, he also was an ordained minister, and worked as a radio and television commentator, public lecturer, and advertising executive. He taught journalism at Howard University and The College of William & Mary, where he sat on the board of trustees among his numerous other achievements.

VICTORIA (PORTER) MYERS, CLASS OF 1961

Vicki Myers began her criminal justice career as a juvenile probation officer in Indianapolis. Upon moving to St. Louis, MO, she began a long career with the Missouri Board of Probation and Parole. Appointed to the Missouri Parole Board in 1984, she held the post for 12 years. After the Board assignment, she eventually became the Director of Parole Services. In 2001, she was asked to serve the Department of Corrections as the Director of Human Services. After over 40 years with the Department of Corrections, she retired in 2011.

Myers' professional and community service accomplishments are extensive. She was the recipient of the E.R. Cass Correctional Achievement Award for her contributions to the field of corrections; the Ben Baer Award for her contributions to the field of parole. In 2004, the National Association of Blacks in Criminal Justice scholarship luncheon was named in her honor. She continues to strive for justice and equality within the criminal justice system, mentors youth and volunteers in various capacities in the Jefferson City, MO, community.

GREGORY K. SILVER, CLASS OF 1964

Upon receiving a BA degree at Miami University and law degree at I.U., Silver's law practice has been consumed by environmental cases, including his argument after the Exxon oil spill at Valdez, Alaska; protecting the history of fossils and Lewis and Clark history at Falls of the Ohio among many others.

The environment and his community have been his priority as a long-time Board member of Keep Indianapolis Beautiful, Nora Northside Community Council, and the Indianapolis Greenways Committee for two decades through appointments of four mayors of different political parties. He served on commissions for recycling, Waste to Energy plant, the Coal Forum and Financial Assurance Board for Governor Frank O'Bannon. He also advised the U.S. State Department on population issues during President Clinton's terms.

He and his wife endowed scholarship funds for Mayan children to the University de Valle in Guatemala and Deer Hill Wilderness Camp (Colorado) for Native Americans to attend from the Hopi, Zuni, Navajo and Ute nations and other disadvantaged youth worldwide.

CHARLES "CHUCK" MARLOWE, CLASS OF 1947

Charles "Chuck" Marlowe had 50+ years of distinguished experience in radio and television broadcasting. He was sports director and sports anchor on WTTV (Channel 4) in Indianapolis for over 40 years; was basketball play-by-play announcer for Indiana University for 30 years, and part of the Worldwide Radio Network for the Indianapolis 500 for 42 years. His career extended beyond basketball and auto racing and included high school and college football, NCAA soccer, college and professional wrestling. He was involved in sports coverage and commercial work from New York to Los Angeles.

A Butler University graduate, Marlowe has been honored by Toastmasters International for communication and leadership. He was elected into the Indiana Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association in 2014.

E. CRAWLEY COOPER, CLASS OF 1951*

Crawley wanted to be an architect...he earned an undergraduate degree in architecture from the University of Cincinnati; he studied at M.I.T. to earn a masters degree on a full scholarship in 1957, he was the youngest person to pass the professional examination to become a practicing architect in the state of Indiana.

He worked on designs for Northwest High School, B'nai Torah Synagogue and Third Christian Church (Indianapolis), and the Sweeny residence in Columbus, IN.

Cooper contributed to the design of over 50 civic, religious, educational and commercial projects, including LaGuardia High School for the Performing Arts (NYC), four buildings on the M.I.T. campus, plus regional shopping centers, government buildings, and laboratories in the eastern U.S. and Europe.

Crawley wrote two books, including A Handbook of Laboratory Design. He founded the Lincoln Academy, a weekly series of lectures by Lincoln, MA residents and beyond. He lectured at Harvard, M.I.T., Purdue and other institutions. He served as an associate of M.I.T. and was a principal in the architectural firm, Jung/Brannen and Associates, Inc. for nearly 25 years.

M. PHILIP KAHL, PH.D., CLASS OF 1952*

Through the influence of Robert L. Black, a science teacher at Shortridge in the 1950s, Phil became interested in both science and birds. He received his undergraduate degree in botany and zoology from Butler University in 1956, his MS in 1961 and Ph.D. in 1963 both from the University of Georgia. From 1959-1969, Kahl studied the breeding behavior of the world's stork species in 11 countries on 5 continents. In 1964, working from his base in East Africa, he began studying the five (5) flamingo species, a worldwide project that lasted 16 years.

His photographs graced the covers of National Geographic, Audubon and International Wildlife. He published 45 scientific papers and three (3) books. He traveled to 83 countries capturing the world's bird life.

In July 1988, he received a MacArthur Fellowship of $320,000 and began a new research project—the African elephant. From 1991-1997, he studied elephant behavior in Hwange National Park in Zimbabwe. He spent his last years analyzing the 226 hours of video tape of the elephants at his home in Arizona.
