Historically the public sector in Northern Ireland has been left behind compared to mainland United Kingdom with public services being left out in the cold, but with such a rich heritage of history and a new look, the industry is now in the best position ever to evolve for the future.

Northern Ireland like all other regions is having to deliver services with less, austerity is still here, but now is the time to look forward and learn from the mistakes of the past rather than repeat them.

We are a year on from the establishment of the 11 new Councils and the transfer of community planning powers, the integration and settling down is done, now to business.

The past year has seen a raft of initiatives launched and what were once ideas have now become a reality, so what's next?

The public sector is keenly aware of the need to tap into bigger developments and this meeting aims to bring together senior public sector professionals to discuss this as well as where to go from here and what needs to be done and implemented to help improve and maintain public sector services and reduce costs.

The Excellence In Healthcare and Excellence In Local Government meeting gives everyone the chance to come together, to share ideas and find different ways of overcoming challenges.

How can Local Government and Health & Social Care work better together?

Michael Henderson has been extremely vocal about the absolute need for Local Government and Health & Social Care to work together more. Looking at ways to keep people out of hospital is at the very top of most HSC Trust Chief Executives agenda, but there is still a gap in the relationship.

During this presentation, Michael will talk about what more needs to be done to ensure a better working relationship between the 2 organisations.

Local Government's Role in Growing the Economy

Following the 2015 Review of Public Administration and the subsequent Local Government Reform, the transfer of powers to local authorities has resulted in Council's being seen as drivers for local growth, job creation and promotion of the economy.

This presentation will discuss the impact of these new powers along with the Council's role in influencing and directing local economic growth in partnership with a wide range of key stakeholders. This will ultimately underpin the importance of the Sub Regional Economy and highlight links with the overarching Community Plan which will contribute to an improved quality of life for citizens.

Anne Donaghy, Chief Executive

14:30 - 15:00

New Councils in New Times: Solutions for Public Services in Northern Ireland

Key elements to be discussed include:

- Outlining the collaborative opportunities due to new legislation and powers of councils
- The Programme for Local Government and the review of the NI Assembly
- Transforming how the public sector delivers in a zero budget, commissioning and collaborative environment
