Futureshock :

Detroit Future City's Plans to Radically Re-Shape Our Community

The 350 page Detroit Future City report is the culmination of then Mayor Bing's three-year Detroit Works Project. In the face of declining population, shrinking revenues and a city standing in increasing isolation from the State and the Region, Detroit Future City outlines a radical vision for the City's next five decades. No Detroiters will be unaffected. There are clear winners and losers in this process. This presentation makes the dynamics of the proposed plan accessible to Detroit citizens to enable them to actively participate in the processes shaping their futures and their communities.
