Sandy Slack, Endorsed HighScope Trainer

Preschoolers are intrinsically motivated to write and to decode, what adults call literacy. These two important content skills lay the foundation for successful future readers and writers. You will leave with the basics for a word bank in your art area, planning and recall strategies that increase both writing and decoding skills and small group practice that supports bookmaking, letter-sound associations and the functional use of words in the lives of your children. Be ready to start the year out with strong ABC, decoding and writing experiences aligned with the Virginia Foundation Blocks. Be an intentional teacher!
