Johnson Insurance partners with The Retired Teachers of Ontario to improve seniors’ quality of life
Timely investment as Canada’s seniors outnumber children

TORONTO, ON (October 21, 2015) – Johnson Insurance announced today the company is partnering with The Retired Teachers of Ontario/ Les enseignantes et enseignants retraités de l’Ontario (RTO/ERO) Foundation to improve the quality of life of Canada’s seniors. Johnson is investing $250,000 over five years to support the Foundation's initiatives focused on the health and wellness of older adults.

The announcement builds on a previous partnership to support the inaugural RTO/ERO Chair in Geriatric Medicine at the University of Toronto, which Dr. Paula Rochon was appointed to on July 1, 2015.

Today’s announcement comes at a turning point in history when there are more people aged 65 years and older (16.1 per cent) in Canada than children aged 0 to 14 years (16.0 per cent). Statistics Canada reports that the share of individuals aged 65 years and older will account for 20.1 per cent of the population on July 1, 2024, while comparatively those aged 0 to 14 years are likely to account for 16.3 per cent.

“Aging is a life-long process that all of us experience in our own unique way,” says Dr. Rochon, Professor in the Department of Medicine and the Institute of Health Policy, Management & Evaluation at the University of Toronto, and Vice President of Research at Women’s College Hospital. “Recognizing and learning more about the complexities of aging is key to ensuring we provide the best possible care to our aging population.”

The recently announced investment at today’s RTO/ERO annual meeting includes an immediate $50,000 investment, followed by a series of four other investments annually until 2019.

“We have an urgent and ambitious vision – and we are steadily moving forward. This significant investment from Johnson Inc. means that we can move full steam ahead!” says Valerie Mah, President, RTO/ERO Foundation.

The country’s elderly population is growing at a rate of 3.5 per cent — approximately four times the growth rate of the total population — and will account for one fifth of Canada’s total population in 2024.

“The quality of life of seniors in Canada is a priority for Johnson Insurance,” adds Ken Bennett, President, Johnson and SVP, Lifestyle Insurance, RSA Canada. “We recognize the valuable role the Foundation has in addressing our shared vision of improving quality of life for seniors and we are proud to support initiatives that will help fuel a healthy future and increased longevity of our population.”
