Women in Leadership

2 pm Sun., Apr. 3 Jewett Hall, Augusta

Our forum will bring together a panel of women who are in prominent positions in the State of Maine. Coming from varied backgrounds, the presenters will tell of their efforts to obtain an education and gain the experience which has made them highly qualified for the roles they now perform. They will talk about what they have learned, how they have charted their careers, how they have dealt with gender bias, and how they have balanced work and family.

State Treasurer Terry Hayes guides the finances of state agencies and provides them with efficient banking services and, incidentally, seeks to find the rightful Maine owners of over $200 million of assets.

Gilda Nardone is the executive director of New Ventures Maine, a career counseling and employment development program helping women to hone their business skills and develop their leadership abilities.

Lois Parham is Maine's Director of AARP. In that capacity she is the lead advocate and spokesperson for the Association for the Advancement of Retired People - and thus for most older people in Maine.

Panel Moderator: Marilyn Canavan, a former State Representative
