

On September 19, 2013, the Community Development Collaborative hosted a happy hour event for the newly formed Young Professionals in Community Development group at Barley's Ale House. The group came together to enjoy locally brewed beer, delicious food, conversation, and make new connections. This first event attracted young professionals from a variety of backgrounds including affordable housing, education, economic development, and community gardening.

Later this fall, the Collaborative will host both young professionals and more experienced professionals for a luncheon event. Stay tuned for more details!