Call for Book Length Manuscripts and Proposals
Focus: Young Adult and Adolescent Literature

Under the editorial guidance of series editor, Dr. Nancy St. Clair, PETER LANG PUBLISHING (New York, New York), an international academic publisher, is pleased to invite submission of book length manuscripts and book proposals, inclusive of edited collections, for its book series:

Between Two Worlds: Adolescent Texts and the Literary Abyss

The Between Two Worlds: Adolescent Texts and the Literary Abyss series represents a growing group of important books on the genre, culture and theories of young adult literatures. The series is inclusive and open to a wide variety of approaches. We welcome scholarly literary studies and interdisciplinary studies from the perspectives of genre, theme, gender, censorship and religion, representations of adolescence and adulthood, and approaches to interpretation. Particular interest includes new approaches to adult expectations, broadening perspectives, peer relationships, disillusionment and alienation, coping with family dynamics, emergent voices, and overcoming obstacles.

If you have a relevant manuscript or an idea for a book, we invite you to submit a proposal to Michelle Salyga, Acquisitions Editor, which includes your name, title, institutional affiliation, mailing address accompanied by the following: 1) a Prospectus in which you describe the rationale and significance — 2-3 pages; brief description, distinctive features, projected length, word-count/number of pages; competition and market considerations, audience; degree of completion of the book and time-line; 2) The Table of Contents; 3) 2-4 Sample Chapters; 4) and a current CV.

All submissions are subject to strict peer-review and assessment before publication is discussed.
