

Charlie's Teacher

Written by Danielle Boyce

Illustrations by Ellen Byrne

This book is dedicated to Miss Kirsten, our miracle worker...and to Ryan, the best teacher of all.

Every Monday, Charlie's teacher comes to see us.
We can't go outside until Charlie's teacher goes home.

Charlie's teacher has a big bag of toys and books.
I am not allowed to touch ANYTHING unless the teacher says it is OK.

Mommy says she needs to teach Charlie because Charlie has a boo boo in his head.

Sometimes, when Charlie's teacher is here,
Mommy doesn't even look at me when I have a question.

Everyone smiles and claps for Charlie.

I am good at lots of things, too!

One day, Charlie's teacher taught him how to play kitchen with me. We made food together!

Charlie fed me! Just pretend.

Charlie was happy!

Mommy was happy!

Charlie's teacher was happy!

I was just a little bit happy.

After Charlie's teacher goes home, Charlie takes a nap and Mommy reads a book to me.

I love Mommy.

I love Charlie.

I love it when it is just the three of us.

But Charlie's teacher can come over to play
sometimes, too.

THE END

Special thanks to Ellen Byrne

<http://www.ellenbyrne.com>

©2012 Danielle Boyce