

Is your business ready to go global?

According to the U.S. Small Business Administration, 96 percent of the world's customers reside outside the United States. In fact, most of the companies in the United States do not think of foreign markets nor that sales opportunities abroad are possible for them.

Miami businesses have the advantage of being located in a trade and logistics hub that is also the gateway to the Americas. There are some steps you can take to decide if your business is ready to start doing business abroad.

This workshop will provide you with the information on resources available to Miami businesses that are either already doing business abroad or are interested in going global.
