A HOLISTIC APPROACH TO HEARING LOSS

The key to a holistic approach to hearing loss “is based on the fundamental beliefs that unconditional love is life’s most powerful healer, and perceived loss of love is our greatest health risk.” (Robert S. Ivker, D.O.)

David M. Harrison, a hearing loss health care provider, will conduct holistic therapies on hearing loss at the Hearing Loss Rehab Institute July 18, 2015.

People with mild to moderate hearing loss can benefit greatly through his training program. Expensive technologies are not the final stage for dealing with hearing loss. A hearing aid does not cure hearing loss; only serves as an aid to hearing. Hearing loss is permanent and cannot be reversed.

Hearing loss affects the mind, body and soul and must be dealt with by a holistic approach called aural rehabilitation. This approach helps people adjust to their hearing loss. There are several ways this can be done:

- Understand your own personal hearing loss and how it impacts your own social, mental, physical and spiritual life.

- Explore methods of assistive hearing technologies that can improve your communication skills.

- Learn easily applied alternative listening and communication strategies.

- Deal with the emotional aspects of hearing loss through peer group counseling.

- Restore relationships in marriage, family, social settings, in the workplace and church. Our goal is to reduce the patient’s frustration and isolation caused by hearing impairment.

Our Hearing Loss Rehab Institute will be held on Saturday, July 18, 2015 from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the NUTRITION WORLD at 6201 Lee Hwy, Chattanooga, 37421. The cost is $79.00 per person.
