CEU: An Ethical Approach to Design and Architecture

Presented by Stacy Walker, Global Director of Marketing and Communications for Milliken Floorcovering

The development of our concepts of right and wrong forms our ethical or moral frameworks throughout our lives. This framework, along with other external motivators, influences our feelings and informs our actions about a range of topics, including how we approach our jobs as architects and designers.

With "An Ethical Approach to Design and Architecture," we will consider a variety of ethical issues in our industry, the factors we take into consideration and ways to resolve potential dilemmas. Our discussion will explore the importance of sustainable design and architecture and the moral and ethical implications of our actions. We will ask if we are considering the greater good of communities at large and creating a better quality of life as we build, rehabilitate and change cities, towns and spaces with our actions.
