Greetings Nurse Colleagues!

Informatics nurses use creativity and innovation to improve patient-centered care and outcomes. Information technology and informatics have the power to transform healthcare. Today, we are on the road to technology-enabled quality care which will allow us to improve decision-making, create innovative processes and embrace change. In just a few months, the nursing community will come together for a dynamic program aimed at demonstrating the value of IT to the world of nursing.

The HIMSS13 Nursing Informatics Symposium has been developed by nurse leaders and informatics experts who, like you, are making tough decisions about the design, implementation and optimization of clinical systems. We are pleased to offer you a high-level program, spanning two days, to provide you with the information you need to be successful in the workplace.

Attendees at the HIMSS13 Nursing Informatics Symposium will hear from nurse leaders who are achieving quality outcomes through the use of technology and informatics. Practical strategies will be shared by nurses engaged in the advancement, implementation and evaluation of technology-enabled quality care.

From advocating for ways to leverage IT to improve safety and health outcomes, to taking the lead in value-driven change, nursing informatics plays a critical role in patient care. The 2013 theme – Nursing Informatics Symposium: The Road to Technology-Enabled Quality Care – offers a dynamic platform of high-level speakers, issues and challenges; as well as the tools and techniques not only necessary but, more importantly, critical in transforming the way we deliver healthcare.

Whether you seek practical tools or leadership knowledge sharing, the 2013 Nursing Informatics Symposium promises educational and networking opportunities that will help you navigate the clinical and regulatory challenges to patient-centered, more efficient care delivery.

If you’re involved in care coordination and are responsible for the development, adoption or implementation of clinical systems that impact and improve quality and increase patient safety, this Symposium is for you. Don’t miss out on these two days that will change the way you work.

Register today to help us celebrate and continue to redefine the importance of nursing informatics!

Cordially,

3RD ANNUAL POSTER SESSIONS!

These highly collaborative and interactive sessions give you a head start on an incredible selection of topics to make your attendance even more valuable.

Posters at the Nursing Informatics Symposium are in their third year and continue to be a very popular feature at the program. Presenters will be on hand to interact with attendees throughout the symposium.

Come and celebrate how your work has integrated into one of these areas of nursing informatics practice:

- Analysis
- Compliance & Integrity Management
- Consultation
- Coordination, Facilitation and Integration
- Development
- Educational & Professional Development
- Leadership, Management and Administration
- Policy Development & Advocacy
- Research & Evaluation

NURSING EDUCATION OBJECTIVES

After completing the Nursing Informatics Symposium, you should be able to:

1. Examine the impact of nursing informatics on quality, cost and efficiency
2. Discuss how nurses can influence health policy and empower patients as partners
3. Describe the importance of collaborative partnerships to advance quality initiatives
4. Explore data analytics and its use as an essential informatics competency
NURSING INFORMATICS SYMPOSIUM:
THE ROAD TO TECHNOLOGY-ENABLED QUALITY CARE

From advocating for ways to leverage informatics and technology to improve safety and health outcomes to taking the lead in value-driven change, nursing informatics plays a critical role in technology-enabled care. Whether you seek practical tools or leadership knowledge sharing, the 2013 Nursing Informatics Symposium promises educational opportunities that will help you navigate any clinical or regulatory bumps along the road ahead to patient-centered, more efficient care delivery.

SATURDAY, MARCH 2

1:00 pm – 1:15 pm

WELCOME AND INTRODUCTION OF SPEAKERS
HIMSS13 Nursing Informatics Symposium Co-Chairs

JOYCE E. SENSMEIER, MS, RN-BC, CPHIMS, FHIMSS, FAAN
