

Beginning the Conversation: Lifecare Innovations Adds Interactive Elements to its Website

In an ongoing effort to be a reliable resource for our clients and referral sources and to offer new ways to access help, Lifecare Innovations has recently upgraded its website to feature interactive elements.

Visit our new “Ask an Expert” page, where any visitor is welcome to submit a confidential question to us for review and response from one of our clinical, property or guardianship experts. This feature will assist in serving those who view our website after hours and cannot necessarily call with questions during the work day. This tool is just another way to begin a conversation wherein problems can be solved and appropriate resources discovered.

The Lifecare Innovations Forum features questions gleaned from telephone and email inquiries, along with the answers we have provided so as to offer guidance to those in similar situations. All identifying information is first removed to protect privacy. Other users can leave comments on this page, opening up a dialog that highlights additional solutions or questions.

The Newsletter archive added to our web page enables our readers to review past issues and have access to a virtual library of articles developed by our own staff members and by esteemed professionals with whom we work.
