HOLY WEEK PREACHER

The Rev. Canon Jeremy Davies

A constant presence at Salisbury since 1985, The Rev. Canon Jeremy Davies is renowned as one of the most creative minds in the Church of England and was the driving force behind the fine services in Salisbury Cathedral until his retirement in January 2012. He contributed enormously to the reputation of the Cathedral, cementing its standing as a centre of liturgical excellence, but he is also known for his inspirational preaching and the caring qualities shown through his pastoral work. He is also known as the script writer and director of "The Way of the Cross" which has been performed four times in Salisbury. Canon Davies is quite involved in the study of historic liturgies and is sought out to serve as the celebrant for liturgies celebrated according to rites that are no longer in use in the Church. He is a graduate of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge and Westcott House.
