Sharing Jesus: A Sacred Exchange

Christian spiritual practice is rooted in, and continues to reflect, deeply Jewish concepts. But it's not enough to speak of Christianity as arising out of 1st century Judaism. Whether as the Jewish reformer and martyr Rabbi Yehoshua, or as the risen Christ come to redeem the world, Jesus is the bridge between two faith traditions – a figure that has historically served to separate us, but can now unite us in spiritual exploration.

Martin Buber noted that, "We Jews know Jesus from within, in the impulses of his Jewish being, in a way that remains inaccessible to the peoples submissive to him." Join us as we explore the life and work of the most most famous Jewish teacher in history, in a way you have never experienced before.
