As the Sikh community in Oak Creek, Wisconsin prepares for Sunday Prayers, a deadly hate attack shatters their lives, but not their resilience. In the year following the attack, community members and law enforcement work together to overcome tragedy, stand up to hate, and create a safe town for all.

Join filmmaker Patrice O'Neill, a guest from Oak Creek and local leaders for this powerful film and lesson for Southeast Michigan.

Waking in Oak Creek

A community rocked by hate is awakened and transformed.
