Trauma in Early Childhood

Understanding the Effects and Treatment Options

Presenter:

Charles H. Zeanah, Jr., MD

Tulane University Sellars-Polchow Chair of Psychiatry; Professor of Pediatrics; Vice Chair for Child and Adolescent Psychiatry; Executive Director, Institute of Infant and Early Childhood Mental Health; Director of Tulane Infant Team

Dr. Zeanah is widely recognized for his leadership in the field of infant mental health, especially in understanding infants' development in the context of infant-parent relationships in high- and low-risk families. His work includes a major interest in infant-parent attachment and in internal representations of attachment in infants and parents. He serves as a Board Member of Zero to Three.

Tuesday May 5, 2015
8:30 am - 3:00 pm

University of Saint Joseph
Hoffman Auditorium, Bruyette Athenaeum
1678 Asylum Ave, West Hartford, CT

Understanding the effects trauma has on children in infancy and early childhood is key to providing the best evidence-based treatment options to ensure healthy development and successful completion of childhood milestones. Join us for this exciting opportunity to hear from Dr. Charles Zeanah, a leader in this area, as he uses case examples and video to train us. Participants will understand:

- Trauma and stress-related disorders of early Childhood
- Attachment disorders in young children
- Treatment of a severely traumatized toddler
